

Chapter I: The Prison-Door

The Scarlet Letter

This chapter speaks of the rose, suggesting that “(i)t may serve, let us hope, to symbolise some sweet moral blossom that may be found along the track, or relieve the darkening close of a tale of human frailty and sorrow.”

What is symbolism?

Based on the information in this chapter, what characteristics does the rose represent?