“The Land of Story-Books” A Child’s Garden of Verses

Directions: Choose one of these activities.

The child in Stevenson’s poem pretends to hunt. Very few children today get to go hunting. However, children still imagine. Children still read. Have you ever imagined yourself in a story or game? Think about one the stories you like best. Put yourself in the story and have a make believe adventure. Write about your adventure.

Draw a picture of the setting in Stevenson’s poem. What does it look like to you as you read his words? Put yourself in the poem wearing your pajamas. Show what you would look hunting like this child.
