

Chapter XIII

Northanger Abbey

Catherine says, "If I am wrong, I am doing what I believe to be right." The theme of right and wrong, both on a moral and social level recurs throughout this chapter. What are the risks involved in doing wrong? What choice is to be made when the moral right and the social right don't coincide? How does Catherine choose to deal with these questions?